About Willow Glen

History

Willow Glen is a neighborhood of San Jose, California, in Santa Clara County. The neighborhood has walkable tree-lined streets, people-oriented homes, diverse architecture, specialty shops, and independent businesses. The historic downtown on Lincoln Avenue between Willow Street and Minnesota Avenue is a well-known “walkable” downtown community, with a variety of restaurants and shops.

By 1863 the small unincorporated community needed its first school. Willow Glen Elementary School was founded in 1863. Willow Glen continued as an unincorporated community until the 1920s, when the City of San Jose ordered the Southern Pacific Railroad to re-route the Southern Pacific Railroad trunk line which at that time was going down Fourth Street. The Southern Pacific then proposed to re-route down Lincoln Avenue. In order to forestall that attempt, Willow Glen was incorporated as a city in 1927. The railroad was instead rerouted to its current route through a then-unincorporated area now known as North Willow Glen, where its principal user is now Caltrain.

Geography and Environment

Willow Glen is located in zip code 95125 and parts of 95124 and 95126. The Los Gatos Creek flows northeasterly through the north section of Willow Glen and the Guadalupe River flows north near the eastern edge of Willow Glen. The Guadalupe River used to be shorter with its source in Willow Glen.

Arts and Architecture

In some neighborhoods the houses have diverse architecture, often side by side, making the area a great place to walk. Many architect-commissioned houses can be seen to the north in Palm Haven. In north Willow Glen the styles include Victorian, Neoclassical (Queen Anne Cottage and Neocolonial), Colonial Revival, Craftsman, Mission, Prairie, Spanish Eclectic, and Tudor.
